DIVE INTO A SPLASHTACULAR SUMMER OF FUN AT MIAMI SEAQUARIUM
along with child-friendly water play activities

MIAMI, FL – March 4, 2008 – This summer Miami Seaquarium will be offering fun and cool alternatives to beat the heat with its Splashtacular Summer celebration. From June 7th to August 17th, 2008 the park will feature daily performances by the All American High Dive Team.

The All American High Dive Show is an entertaining acrobatic and dive show that will leave guests laughing, filled with amazement and sometimes just a little wet. The show will feature professional divers from around the country who show off their Olympic diving ability along with hilarious comedic antics. Guests will be amazed to see the featured 75-foot high dive into a clear-sided pool with just eight feet of water.

“The All American Dive Team will bring added fun and a big splash to Miami Seaquarium this summer,” commented Andrew Hertz, general manager at Miami Seaquarium. “This new show will entertain our guests with never-before-seen high dive stunts and comedy that will keep them laughing throughout the show.”

The park will offer other ways to have fun while keeping cool with a ‘Kids Water Play Area. Children will be able to enjoy inflatable water slides and wet slip-n-slides as a part Splashtacular Summer at Miami Seaquarium. In addition, Salty’s Pirate Playground and the park’s ‘Spray and Play’ misting stations will provide fun and refreshing ways to stay cool.

Miami Seaquarium offers one more way to stay cool this summer during shows at the park’s Killer Whale stadium. Just sit in one of the first rows of the stadium when Lolita the Killer Whale makes one of her incredible leaps out of the pool and sends hundreds of gallons of cool water cascading into the audience. It’s definitely the coolest fun in town.
